2. ADOPTION OF AGENDA
Chair Ryan called for a motion to adopt the meeting agenda; on a motion by Regent Balducci, seconded by Regent Stewart, the Agenda was unanimously adopted.

3. CHAIR RYAN’S REMARKS
- Chair Ryan welcomed everyone to the meeting.
- She announced that Regent Juanita James will join the Human Resources and Administration Committee.

4. CHANCELLOR CHENG’S REMARKS
Chancellor Cheng made the following remarks:
- The Chancellor took time to mourn with the CT State Community College and CT State Three Rivers communities on the passing of Alycia Ziegler last week.
- He identified examples of where CSCU is making progress as a system to the benefit of all our institutions:
  - CSCU recently announced a partnership with Ithaka S+R to help students successfully transfer credits when moving between colleges and universities or attempting to transfer college credits they earned in high school or elsewhere. He noted that the rate of transfer for CT State Community College students moving into CSCU four-year institutions is far too low; too many CSCU community college students choose to leave CSCU, or even worse, they do not move on to pursue a four-year degree at all. Central Connecticut State University, Southern Connecticut State University, and CT State Community College are part of the first group of institutions featured on Ithaka S+R’s “universal credit transfer explorer.” CSCU’s participation in the universal credit transfer explorer will provide students with better information about how credits transfer, help to prevent credit loss, lessen the time it takes to earn a degree, and boost graduation rates.
  - CSCU has been partnering with the Business and Higher Education Forum (BHEF), a national organization dedicated to creating partnerships and opportunities between higher education institutions and industry leaders. The Chancellor worked closely with Regent Guay and BHEF to help create the inaugural BHEF Faculty Innovations Fellowship Program. The first cohort of 19 fellows from around the country proudly includes Dr. Tom Barron from Charter Oak State College, Benjamin Abugri, at Southern Connecticut State University, and Michelle Kusaila at Central Connecticut State University. Their work will help students while enhancing curriculum and opportunities that will further distinguish their academic programs.
  - The Regents will consider a proposal to bring Barnes & Noble College’s equitable access program, First Day Complete, to CSCU universities—Eastern, Central, Western, and Southern—and Charter Oak State College. In Fall 2022, three CSCU universities were already in search of a new bookstore contract. By January 2023, CSCU institutions, led by their presidents and CFOs, had agreed to work collaboratively to leverage the power of the system to try to secure an arrangement that would be broadly beneficial for all students and institutions. Since January 2023, work has been led by CSCU institutions in partnership with the system office. The Chancellor thanked Presidents Elsa Nunez, Zulma Toro, and Ed Klonoski for their commitment to this work and recognized the five institutional CFOs—Jim Howarth at Eastern, Lisa Bucher at Central, Mark Rozewski at Southern, Beatrice Fevry at Western, and Mike Moriarty at Charter Oak—for their diligence in helping to shape the RFP, and ultimately selecting Barnes and Noble College. He also noted that two provosts were deeply involved in this work—Dr. Bill Salka at Eastern, and Dr. David Ferreira at Charter Oak. The system office team, Dr. Lloyd Blanchard, Jessica Paquette, Danny Aniello, Janel
Wright, and several others, were also instrumental. The highest levels of leadership came together from across the system to represent the needs of students and institutions with the goal of creating the best value and savings for students, while maintaining and even increasing faculty flexibility, while also yielding significant gains for each institution. If approved by the Board, the proposal will drive down the cost of textbooks and course materials for full-time and part-time undergraduate students by 30%. It will increase student success and maintain student choice. Students may opt out of the program if they can find their textbooks cheaper or more efficiently. He noted that the work has been researched and vetted and it was passed unanimously through the BOR Finance Committee.

- President Maduko provided an update from CT State Community College. His presentation is included as Attachment A.
  - Regent James supported President Maduko’s comments concerning access, support, and wrap-around services and acknowledged the many challenges that students face.
  - Regent Wright asked about reactions from legislators concerning the progress and impact CT State has made and how CT State’s work can assist the System while financial challenges still exist.
    President Maduko responded that the legislator feedback has been mostly very positive and that regular communications about the magnitude of CT State and who CT State serves need to continue.
  - Regent Porth noted how proud he is to be connected to CSCU and CT State Community College. He continued by stating that nobody is better at providing access to opportunity for the people of Connecticut than CSCU. There is no better economic investment in the future of Connecticut than CSCU.
  - Regent McCarthy commended President Maduko on his presentation and asked that the other CSCU institutions also provide similar reports.

As the last public speaker, Professor Blitz concluded his comments by asking that a voting member of the Board propose the following as a statement of the Board’s point of view:

That the Board recommends to university presidents that, on an institution-by-institution basis, priority be given to refilling positions in departments where more than 25% of faculty retire, and that a report by each university be provided to the Board by January 1, 2025.
Regent Guay made a motion from the floor that the Board adopt as a resolution that:

A Life-Changing Education

“I’m fortunate enough to be pursuing a degree in Early Childhood Education without any debt or tuition cost, thanks to PACT. While at CT State, I found my sense of belonging. I am a student leader, member of SGA, and participate in Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society. The faculty and staff at CT State have transformed my life. I hope to someday give back to my students the same way CT State has given to me.”

Thank you!
Good afternoon, President Chang and the members of the Board of Regents.

My name is Taryn Bellinger, and I am a senior undergraduate student at Southern Connecticut State University. I am here to speak today on behalf of college students who have struggled to find ways to afford higher education through local resources, guidance, and educational programs. As a student, I have worked two part-time jobs every semester to help pay my bill, along with the help of my mother who must work two jobs to support my efforts. I am also a member of Southern Connecticut State University’s Honors College. Through this program, I have been fortunate to receive access to multiple scholarships and volunteering opportunities, along with educational and career guidance. Though even with this support, my family has still struggled to afford the annual school bill. I have also been able to see a large disparity in the sharing of programs and guidance for the average student throughout the state of Connecticut. For example, the application and resources offered by the Honors College are not emailed to incoming students. The only way to find out about the program is by searching for it on the university’s website. This allows hundreds of qualifying students to miss out on an opportunity that could support their education efforts dramatically. I believe that higher education should be affordable for students of all backgrounds, and therefore, that resources and mentorship should be advertised and available more frequently. For example, when talking with a resident on campus, I was told that her family was struggling to afford her school bill and that they do not fill out the FASFA form because they have never received enough money and did not know how to complete the form in a way that best represents their finances. As a result, she is constantly searching for outside scholarships, however the number of papers and application materials required has made it harder for her to focus on her schoolwork. As a student at Southern, I have also noticed that finding scholarships or programs to help afford higher education is extremely difficult. The only frequent information in my four years at Southern that I have received is an email about the SCSU Foundational Scholarship that is offered every semester. However, because this scholarship is well known throughout campus, and as every student receives the email, it only supports a few students each semester. Apart from the SCSU Foundational Scholarship, it is up to the individual to search for additional resources. I believe that it is unjust that only around 600 students, all who are members of the Honor College at Southern, have frequent guidance on opportunities to help them afford higher education, while the rest of the student body remains stressed and unsure of how to find programs for financial support. It is unfair to continue to raise tuition without solving this scholarship issue first. In conclusion, if you truly believe that higher education is beneficial and an option for all individuals, then the effort to keep them in schooling should be of equal effort.

Thank for your time,

Taryn Bellinger
Dear members of the Board of Regents,

On Thursday, March 21st, the Connecticut State Colleges & Universities system (CSCU) will request the Board of Regents (BOR) to vote on implementing an Equitable Access Program Fee.

The Department of Education thinks it is BAD FOR STUDENTS! On Thursday, March 7th, the Department of Education had the following motion:

MOTION that the Education Department recommends the University adopt an "opt-in" version of the fee policy, extending at least one month before and after the start of each semester by D. Robert; second by L. Rodriguez. Motion carries unanimously.

The Biden-Harris administration thinks so too. On March 15, the White House made the following public declaration (see the link to the full declaration below):

Colleges are also currently allowed to automatically charge students for textbooks if the charge meets certain criteria. Students are often unaware of this hidden cost or their ability to decline the charge, preventing them from shopping around for a better price.

Eliminating Automatic Charges for Textbooks: The Department is undergoing negotiated rulemaking to reduce costs incurred by students in addition to tuition in higher education by ending the practice of automatic billing on tuition for textbooks. Under the draft proposal, students would now need to authorize a charge on their tuition bill for course materials. Competitive markets provide consumers choice and value, but automatic charges for textbooks and course materials leave students with little ability to meaningfully shop around for better prices or to utilize free and open-source textbooks. These changes, if proposed and finalized, would provide students with real choice and the ability to use the best textbooks at the most affordable price.

The Equitable Access Program fails on both equity and accessibility fronts. This program imposes a fee on students for access to their course materials, rendering it inaccessible for students who cannot afford it. Moreover, it lacks equity as it charges the same fee to all students regardless of their financial circumstances. This marketing misnomer disguises the true nature of the program and should be named Automatic Textbook Billing.

Information presented to the BOR regarding student support for the program is misleading (see the link to the information provided by Barnes and Noble below). Data provided by Barnes & Noble (B&N), the vendor set to profit from the program, suggests widespread student backing (more than 80% of support, or 551 students supporting this program at Central, Eastern, and Southern). However, since people discovered this program, 1000 individuals have signed a petition against it (the petition link and Report News from Channel 3 Eyewitness News are provided below).

So, why do students oppose this policy? As the first concerned, they understand the costs associated with textbooks. While some students in majors requesting expensive textbooks may benefit financially, the majority will not. Furthermore, the information provided to the BOR regarding financial benefits for students is deceptive. Barnes & Noble shows savings based on costs associated with students purchasing new textbooks. Many students rent course material or share it with their friends. At Eastern, only 36% of courses had course material indicated in the bookstore for the Spring 2024 term. Analysis from Eastern's class schedule and bookstore data reveals that, on average, students would pay less for course materials if they opt for the cheapest bookstore option rather than being automatically enrolled in automatic textbook billing without initial consent. In fact, based on the dedication of Eastern faculty to finding free course material for students, it would mean that students using Automatic Textbook Billing would rent the course material for more than $140.00 for a class.

For the aforementioned reasons, I urge the members of the Board of Regents to vote against the Equitable Access Program Fee.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Dugan

Dear BOR Member Richard Balducci,

I have been a professor at Eastern since 2007 and this is the first time I have written to members of the Board of Regents (or the previous Board of Trustees). I was moved to reach out because my students have been increasingly upset about the proposal from Barnes & Noble for Automatic Textbook Billing. Many have shared with me that they are deeply concerned about the ramifications for students, starting as soon as this fall. I was startled to learn that their concern is shared by the Biden-Harris administration, which refers to automatic charges for textbooks as one of the “junk fees” they are targeting (March 15, 2024) FACT SHEET: Biden-Harris Administration Takes New Action to Crack Down on Junk Fees in Higher Education | The White House

I know you have been a public school teacher and that we share the same goal of making sure our students can access an excellent education at an affordable price in the CSCU system. Many of my students are working part- and full-time jobs to make ends meet, so I endeavor to use high quality, cutting-edge materials in ways that are low-cost or no-cost (e.g., putting materials on reserve at the library, using OER texts, using online library resources). Automatic Textbook Billing is in the corporate interest certainly, with residuals for our universities, but at what cost for our students? Putting the additional onus on students to have to “opt out” within a short time frame, rather than consciously “opt-in” each semester seems like a tricky way to tip things in favor of the corporation.

Thank you for taking the time to read my concerns. I sincerely hope that the BOR rejects this proposal for Automatic Textbook Billing.

Good afternoon,

I am writing to you to express my discontent with the "Equitable Access Program" that is being proposed to Connecticut State Universities. The program reports that it will save students money by automatically charging them for listed course materials. However, it charges a mandatory regressive flat amount to all students regardless of their financial situation and prevents students from exploring alternative means of affording textbooks (i.e. renting, borrowing, open-source, etc.). I am vehemently against this program and would like you to advocate that this program be terminated.

Best regards,
Tyler S. Fairbanks
Bookstore Operations & Equitable Access Program Proposal

March 13, 2024
First Day Complete (FDC)

allows full-time and part-time undergraduate students to receive required course materials for all classes for a flat fee, regardless of how much each individual textbook or digital access would cost to rent or purchase separately.

Key Benefits

With First Day Complete, BNC’s equitable access program, students receive their required course materials, in both physical and digital formats, before the first day of class. Instead of purchasing materials a la carte, the rental cost is applied to the student’s account at the same time tuition is charged, typically saving students an average of 35-50%.

First Day Complete (FDC) allows full-time and part-time undergraduate students to receive required course materials for all classes for a flat fee, regardless of how much each individual textbook or digital access would cost to rent or purchase separately.

ZERO change in faculty adoption

Faculty maintain full academic freedom without any restrictions on format or publisher selection.

Good morning regents,

My name is Dave Ferreira, and I am the Provost at Charter Oak State College. I am here to provide enthusiastic support for the CSCU Equitable Access Program on the agenda today. Over the past two plus years, Charter Oak has thoroughly examined ways to provide the most affordable and seamless student experience regarding course materials and that is exactly what this proposal accomplishes. While no solution is perfect, this proposal has the most pros for Charter Oak students. Some of these points to highlight are about Charter Oak and our students, but it can also be a benefit to all CSCU students:

- Students currently at Charter Oak are subject to high shipping charges for physical textbooks. Students unfortunately need to subsidize these high shipping costs with more loans. This deal includes shipping in the fee (no added costs) for those courses with physical textbooks.

- Wrapping Charter Oak into the system RFP allowed Charter Oak to leverage economies of scale which resulted in CSCU negotiating a 20% discount from prior pricing received by the campus immediately prior to the RFP. Students will spend less especially considering the amount of access codes we use in addition to books because of our online nature.

- Research on equitable access at 4-year institutions found a substantial increase of course completion rates for students age 25 and up. 86% of COSC students are 25 and up and can benefit from the equitable access program.

- Many of our online competitors already have equitable access as part of their offerings. For example, Post University Online covers course materials and they charge $90 per course. UMGC advertises that students can complete most undergraduate degrees without purchasing textbooks. CSCU institutions offering online programs are already behind the curve by not offering equitable access and we do not want to be further behind from a competitive advantage standpoint.

- Due to the accelerated nature where over 90% of our courses are 8-week format or less, it is even more crucial for all our students to have access on day one. Waiting for a voucher from Financial Aid which takes 3 weeks basically keeps our students from the best opportunity from succeeding. This program solves this issue.

- Only 5% of our courses are OER. The vast majority of our materials are high priced due to the supplemental software needs of online courses and I would suspect the same is true with other CSCU institutions with online courses. While it is true that those courses with OER would still pay the fee, the cumulative nature of courses would produce cost savings. Think about it like those that do budget payments with their energy company to create a consistent expense each month on their energy costs. This program is like that but also producing a savings. Creating a consistent amount for materials helps our students’ budget for college as opposed to the current huge fluctuation semester to semester.

- From a student experience perspective, this provides convenience. 78% of our students work full time and lead busy lives. This program provides that convenient option our students expect while giving them the option to opt out.

This program is a huge win for CSCU students, and we would like to have this program available for the fall 2024 semester with your approval. Thank you for your consideration.
